Art Unit: 3736

1. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Claims 1-70 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-67 of copending Application No. 10/657,296. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because they both claim a method and system for reducing discomfort caused by transcutaneous stimulation by providing a transcutaneous stimulation to a first location and providing a stimulation at a second location to reduce discomfort at the first location caused by the transcutaneous stimulation.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

3. Claims 1-70 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-72 of copending Application No. 10/792,994. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because they both claim a method and system for reducing discomfort caused by transcutaneous stimulation by providing a transcutaneous stimulation to a first location and providing a stimulation at a second location to reduce discomfort at the first location caused by the transcutaneous stimulation.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

5. Claims 1-39, 49-51 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 is unclear in that it appears that the step of applying an electrical signal to a second location is the same as the step of reducing the discomfort since the applying of the electrical signal is what is reducing the discomfort and if not then the step of reducing the discomfort is incomplete in that it is unclear how reducing step is performed. Similarly with claim 25, in that the step of applying a substance would be the same as the step of reducing the discomfort. Claims 49-51 should recite "at least one conductor" as defined in claim 40 since there could only be one and not plural conductors as defined by the language of claim 40.

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claims 40-41, 44-47, 68 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Edrich et al.

Edrich et al teaches a device for providing magnetic stimulation having a magnetic stimulation device for treating a first location (horizontal coil 11), what is considered to be "at least one conductor (vertical coil 12) that is in communication with a signal generator that would be needed to provide an electric current to the coil, which would carry the electrical signal to the second location. With regard to claims 44-46 these are merely directed to where on the body the device is placed and the Edrich et al device is clearly capable of being placed anywhere on the body.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to John P. Lacyk whose telephone number is 571-272-4728. The examiner can normally be reached on Mon-Fri, 8:30-5:00.
